

Mile High Squash Parent Advisory Council

Parents are key stakeholders in the Mile High Squash organization and parent involvement is integral to the success of the program. One opportunity for parent involvement is participation in the Mile High Squash Parent Advisory Council. The MHS Parent Advisory Council is comprised of parent representatives from each grade of the program. The MHS Parent Advisory Council meets monthly and is supported by an MHS staff liaison.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the MHS Parent Advisory Council is to support the success of the MHS program by being actively involved in MHS initiatives to build strong relationships between parents and the organization.

The goals of the MHS Parent Advisory Council are to:

- Encourage and support parent participation and involvement in the MHS program.
- Facilitate fundraising for MHS initiatives like summer programs, equipment, uniforms, and trips.
- Organize biannual MHS parent events.
- Help to reinforce the MHS network of support by strengthening the relationship between families, school and the program.

RESPONSIBILITIES

To reach these goals, we ask that MHS Parent Advisory Council members:

- Participate in Parent Advisory Council meetings to stay informed about MHS programs and operations.
- Function as liaisons between fellow parents and the organization.
- Serve as program ambassadors and advocate for the MHS program within both the parent community and the larger Denver community.
- Provide suggestions and feedback, and play an active role in Parent Advisory Council initiatives, MHS programs, and opportunities for community collaboration and development.
